Earth Manual Project, an initiative of KIITO (Design and Creative Center Kobe), encourages a country of frequent natural disasters, such as the Philippines, to become a country of exceptional disaster preparedness. The exhibition's maiden run in 2013 was in Kobe, Japan, wherein 23 projects from different Asian countries showcased activities centered on disaster risk reduction and post-disaster relief and recovery. The Philippine run of the exhibition includes 11 projects that engage themes on earthquake, typhoon, and flood.

Dear Dr. Bringas,
Greetings from the Maryknoll Ecological Sanctuary.

Earth Manual Project, a travelling exhibition from The Japan Foundation, Manila in partnership with the Maryknoll Ecological Sanctuary (MES) will be held on June 27 to August 30, 2015 in three galleries at the MES. The exhibition will feature 11 projects from the Philippines, Japan, Thailand, and Indonesia.

Please join us at the opening reception of the exhibition on June 26, 2015/Friday at 4 p.m. An invitation is attached herewith.

The exhibition's maiden run in 2013 was in Kobe, Japan, wherein 23 projects from different Asian countries showcased activities centered on disaster risk reduction and post-disaster relief and recovery. The exhibition traveled to Manila and was shown at the Ayala Museum in November 2014.

Earth Manual Project is an opportunity for viewers to creatively reflect on the urgency of disaster preparedness and make their own disaster preparedness manual based on the presented projects. The exhibition aims to draw the interest of viewers in the Cordillera and Ilocos region especially teachers and students. The exhibition will be open daily, 8:30. to 4 p.m. with an admission fee of PhP20.

We hope that you could endorse this to teachers and students in the different schools in Baguio since it is an unusual learning opportunity. We have some limited posters available. . Kindly give us a call 424-5745, 0915-655-5745 or write to <mesbagoio@gmail.com> to let us inform us of your availability for this event and to let us know how many posters will be useful in specific schools so we could have them delivered to your office.

We will be very honored if you could be join us at the opening reception.

Thank you very much.

Yours truly,

Erlyn Ruth Alcantara
