INTRODUCTION

Social sciences as defined in the Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences by Edwin R. A. Seligman are “those mental or cultural sciences which deal with the activities of the individual as a member of a group.” The major disciplines under social sciences include anthropology, economics, geography, history, law, political science, psychiatry, psychology, sociology and statistics. Seligman also mentioned about semi-social sciences like ethics, education, philosophy and psychology and sciences with social implications like biology, geography, medicine, linguistics and art. These various disciplines are therefore essential in understanding diverse social issues and concerns that affect not only the youth and the nations of the world but the whole humanity as well.

Founded on the importance of the disciplines of social sciences, the Borres Youth Leadership Institute or BYLI organized the International Social Science Camp (ISSC). Since 2014, it has provided avenues and opportunities for young people and educators to develop their basic understanding of the various disciplines of social sciences that will equip them with the 21st century skills to become life-long learners.

“We need the social sciences in order to address the challenges of global change. Social scientists bring a wealth of knowledge about processes of social transformation that will be critical to dealing with issues of environmental change and sustainability”.

Alberto Martelli, President, International Social Science Council

In line with the policy of Republic Act No. 10533 otherwise known as the “Enhanced Basic Education Act of 2013” to produce “graduates of basic education who are empowered individuals who have learned, x x x the foundations for learning throughout life, the competence to engage in work and be productive, the ability to coexist in fruitful harmony with local and global communities, the capability to engage in autonomous, creative, and critical thinking, and the capacity and willingness to transform others and one’s self”, BYLI is continuously implementing innovative and relevant programs and activities to develop students and teachers to become responsive citizens for nation-building.

The International Social Science Camp also features programs and activities with foreign and local delegates from ASEAN member countries that will help strengthen the goal of ASEAN Community Integration of building ONE ASEAN identity. Other foreign delegates at the ISSC will provide support to the prominent role in youth development of the World Program of Action for Youth of the United Nations as the camp offers discussion on national and global issues and understanding cultural diversity. Other activities include BYLImpics, International Academy, International Night, Institutional Visit, young Leader’s Forum, Plenary Sessions, Teacher’s Conference, Philippine Night, Social Sciences Competitions and Kilos Kabataan Kabataan Youth Project presentation.

THEME FOR THE 2019 ISSC:

"Forming and Empowering Young Leaders and Educators as Key Players in Achieving Sustainable Development Goals"

RATIONALE OF THE THEME:

To end poverty is the greatest global challenge and an indispensable element for sustainable development. On 25 September 2015 at the United Nations General Assembly, 193 member-states adopted the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, which includes a set of 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) to end poverty, fight inequality and injustice, and tackle climate change by 2030.

Change

- BYLImpics

- One must understand that he is a part of a greater community. In this activity, delegates engage in various team building activities to learn the principles of leadership, cooperation, unity and teamwork.

- Morning Assembly

- At the assembly, delegates gather to start the day's activities. Announcements and reminders are made at the morning assembly.

- International Academy

- Delegates are introduced to new concepts and ideas, learn new culture from other countries and develop new skills that are useful in becoming a globally competitive individual.

- International Night

- International Night features the delegates wearing other countries' costume and cultural performances. International cuisine is served to have a taste of foreign food.

- Institutional Visit

- Various institutions of the society affect every man's activity, values and culture. In this activity, delegates take time to visit popular places and learn about its impact and contribution to the community.

- Outreach Activities

- BYLI believes that everyone has a role to play in community development. Here, delegates actively organize themselves and participate in outreach programs where they learn that man is created for the benefit of his fellowmen in the community.
